
CHARRED ALTAR - Rev. William Binford pauses while sifting through the ruins at the altar of Independent Missionary Baptist Church which was gutted by fire Saturday night. He noted that the church Bible, although badly burned, was being patched up with plastic in an effort to preserve it. He said the same thing will be done to the cross, seen at the rear of the pulpit. Loss was estimated at $10,000.

"If The Good Lord Be Willing, We'll Keep Going" Pastor Says

By JOHN B. COMBS

"I don't know how we'll do it, but if The Good Lord be willing, we shall keep going."

Those were the terse and philosophical words uttered by the Rev. William Binford in reference to the sanctuary of his church being gutted by an early Saturday night fire.

The contents of the Independent Missionary Baptist Church, 2191 E. Fifth Ave., were totally destroyed by the blaze, which firemen attributed to an arsonist.

"Nothing was covered by insurance," said the 34 year old dejected pastor, of 1866 Enderly Dr.

According to a report by Fire Battalion Chief Gene Wedemeyer, the arsonist broke into the one story brick building between two other buildings, through the rear door.

The arsonist, once inside the church facility, poured and ignited either gasoline or kerosene near the altar and on a sofa in the women's lounge about 10 p.m.

Rev. Binford, a June graduate of the Columbus Bible Institute, said he or probably some of the 75 members would have been at the church had they not held their annual picnic that evening. He said he thought about going to the church after arriving home, but, "perhaps it's best that I did not go," he observed.

Binford, as a result of graduating after carrying a 3.5 grade average throughout his attendance of the Institute, now holds a teaching certificate making him eligible to teach religion.

Reflecting on the fire, Binford said that although the church had been burned out, "We still held worship service Sunday." The congregation assembled in the parking lot at the rear of the church where he delivered his usual morning worship sermon.

Strolling calmly through the charred ruins of the sanctuary, Binford paused at the altar near the church organ. The final payment on the four year old $5,000 organ was paid recently, he recalled. Turning toward a nearby piano, he noted that it only cost the church $200, but it has

Eight-Year-Old Dies In Bizarre July 3 Tragedy

An eight-year-old Fairwood Elementary School third-grader who met death as the result of a freak accident July 3 was buried at Green Lawn Cemetery last Friday (July 7).

The youngster, Roy Antoine Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Henderson of 754 Bulen Ave., was crushed to death by a bargabe dumpster that fell on him as he and another youngster were playing on it in the parking lot of an apartment complex on Reinhard Ave.

The other boy, Lamont Wilson, 5, of 1696 Reinhard Ave., was not seriously injured in the mishap.

According to Det. Sgt. Thomas Aurentz of the Columbus Police homicide squad, the two boys apparently were swinging on bars protruding from the sides of the dumpster when it tipped over, trapping the Wilson boy by the neck and crushing the Henderson child beneath its full weight.

The tragedy occurred at about 12:30 p.m. A 21-year-old resident of a nearby apartment heard the boys' screams and ran out to investigate, police reported.

The man, Kenneth Hughes, 21, of 1706 Reinhard Ave., said he was able to free the Wilson child before he suffered any serious injury.

Henderson, however, was beneath the dumpster, which had fallen over on him. Blood was oozing from the child's ears and nose, Hughes said.

Hughes managed to lift the heavy bin off of the boy's body and yelled for a neighbor to call the fire department emergency squad.

Henderson was pronounced dead on arrival at Children's Hospital at about 1:50 p.m., police said.

Hughes told investigating officers that the bin's position on an inclined portion of the parking lot contributed to the tragedy. Had the dumpster been on level ground, "they couldn't have pulled it down," Hughes was quoted.

Hughes said another child was injured while playing on the same dumpster about two months earlier.

The dead boy was a Cub Scout. In addition to his parents, he is survived by a sister, Dana, and brother, Tony; grandparents, Roy and Annie Henderson; aunt and uncle, Pat and Harold Rogers; cousins Monte and Leodra Rogers;

Anti-Death Penalty Coalition Uptight Over Court Decision

By C.A. BRYCE JR.
-Columbus Bureau-

For Rose Maynard, chairperson of the Ohio Coalition Against the Death Penalty, the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling overturning Ohio's capital punishment law is like the proverbial half-loaf of bread: better than nothing but not nearly enough.

"Certainly, the Coalition and other opponents of capital punishment are elated over this significant victory," Maynard said in an interview recently. "At the same time, we are disheartened that the High Court did not abolish the death penalty in America once and for all time to come."

In a decision handed down July 3, the Court voted 7-1 to reverse the death sentences of Sandra Lockett of Akron and Willie Lee Bell of Cincinnati, declaring that the Ohio law was unconstitutionally restrictive. Justice William Brennan was ill and did not take part in the decision.

The majority declared that Ohio's statute violated the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment" because it did not allow judges adequate discretion to consider mitigating circumstances before imposing the death penalty.

Only one of the justices -- Thurgood Marshall, the only black on the panel — held that the death penalty is cruel and unusual in and of itself.

Already, some members of the Ohio Legislature have indicated their desire to enact a new death law that will conform to the Supreme Court's guidelines. Ohio Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, who is campaigning for re-election to a third term, has declared his support for speedy enactment of a new capital punishment law modeled after the one which is now on the books in Georgia.

The Georgia law and those of Texas and Florida were upheld as constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976. All of them allow consideration of almost all possible mitigating factors by sentencing authorities.

Some members of the board of the Ohio Coalition Against the Death Penalty gathered in Columbus over the weekend to plan future strategy in their continuing fight to have capital punishment permanently abolished.

Among those attending the strategy session were Chairperson Maynard; Associate Dir. Robb Weind of Columbus; The Rev. Gary Witte, associate pastor at the Hilliard United Methodist Church and a member of the Coalition's board; and Elizabeth Curtis, secretary of the Coalition's Cincinnati chapter and also a board member.

Ms. Maynard said the group will be concentrating on lobbying

Alleged Rapist Nabbed At Scene Of An Earlier Crime

By C.A. BRYCE JR.

A popular theme in B-movies and potboilers used to be that of the criminal returning to the scene of his crime, only to be nabbed by the long arm of the law. Last week, it happened in real life, police alleged, when an 18-year-old Eastsider was arrested at a Parkwood Ave. nursing home and charged with having abducted and raped a female employee of the same nursing home over three months ago.

Charles Adolph Knight, of 1607 E. Long St. was being held in City Prison Tuesday pending arraignment on charges of rape, kidnapping, aggravated robbery and aggravated burglary.

Det. David Foote of the Columbus Police assault squad said Knight was arrested at the Irene Cahill Nursing Home, 32 Parkwood Ave., after 5:30 a.m. Friday by officers who had been summoned to investigate a trespasser.

While they were taking Knight into custody, a young woman employee said she recognized him as the man who abducted her from the nursing home and raped her on May 6.

Other witnesses of the May 6 incident picked Knight out of a police lineup and fingered him as the alleged rapist.

...charged in nursing home attack

Shortly after the May incident, another woman employee of the nursing home called the CALL & POST and complained to a reporter that the police were not giving adequate attention to the case.

During several long and rambling telephone conversations, the woman heaped abuse on detectives who, she said, were racist and incompetent.

The reporter relayed her complaints to the assault squad and investigators contacted her for a report, Foote said. The detective said the woman was extremely abusive and critical of the police department.

"We had a show-up (lineup) and asked her and other witnesses to come down and see if they could identify the suspect," Foote related.

The woman refused to attend the show-up, the detective said. "She said she was 'too tired'," Foote informed us.

Although obviously everely hurt by the loss of he piano and organ, Binord said he was really sad bout the destruction of nother item. It was a rum, owned by his nine ear old son, Kai. He said he drum, valued at over 1,000, included its acessories, was given to his on by a woman who was oining the military service.

His son dearly loved that rum, he said, but added, hat he was proud of the ay he took it. After isiting the burned out hurch, his son inquired bout other losses, but ever once mentioned his rum, he asserted.

Binford, who, like the old piritual song, "God Will ake A Way Some How," s encouraged by the esponse of a couple of pastors. He has already received a $217 donation from Rev. Michael D. Reeves and Corinthian Missionary Baptist, $77 from Rev. Michael Dickerson of Bellview, O., and $17 from the Mt. Vernon Ave. Missionaly Baptist and Rev. Bennie Brogsdale, he said.

The manager of the Speedway Service Station, Fifth Ave. and Sunbury Rd., also has offered his help to the troubled pastor. "He invited us to hold a barbecue on the parking lot at his service station this weekend," he said.

On the whole, he indicated that the moral support of the community has been encouraging indeed. And with this kind of support and "the help of The Good Lord," he expressed confidence in gaining the necessary strength to continue his religious leadership in the community.

Minority Businesses Exceed $2.7 Million In COTA Contracts

Jewell J. Betty, minority business enterprise (MBE) officer for the Central Ohio Transit Authority (COTA), in a recent report to the task force monitoring progress on the new maintenance and storage facility to be built on McKinley Ave., said she has exceeded the 12 percent MBE participation required by the Federal government, which is footing part of the bill.

Betty reports a commitment of 25 percent minority business involvement from the contractors who apparently submitted low bids. In terms of dollars, this means that minority firms will share a $2,795,421 portion of the contract costs.

This commitment reflects only a portion of the total contracts, however, since 12 bid packages will be submitted for rebid, Betty added.

Betty urged interested contractors and suppliers to contact her at COTA's offices, 51 N. High St., or by telephone at (614) 228-3831, for more information.

When the facility is completed, COTA will be purchasing numerous supplies and equipment to go into it, Betty said.

COTA will be purchasing the following types of equipment: cleaning, abrasive, chassis, washing, vacuum, lifts, fuel, testing, crane, lube, painting and tire equipment, Betty said.

The agency will also purchase shop equipment, such as a calibrating machine, drill presses, saws, shears, a punch press, sewing machine, washer and dryer. Miscellaneous power equipment, including a power floor sweeper and washer, fork lift trucks and related items will also be needed, the MBE officer said.

Job Outlook Good For Technical Grads

U.S. business and industry are actively seeking black college students, Ohio State University placement officers say.

But the supply of black graduates falls short of the demand, particularly in such high-demand, technical fields as computer science and engineering.

A job fair held recently by the Office of Minority Affairs attracted recruiters from 46 companies and governmental agencies from across the country.

National figures show 45,000 students received bachelor's degrees in engineering this year. Of that number, fewer than 1,000 were black. At Ohio State three to four percent of this year's engineering graduates were minorities. All had jobs well before they graduated, said Tarver Hagan, college placement director.

In a year when the demand for all graduates in the technical areas is strong, blacks with degrees in computer science, accounting, production and sales have been actively sought out by business corporations, said James Decker, College of Administrative Science placement director.

"I'm constantly getting calls from companies wanting to recruit minorities," Decker said. "The opportunities for blacks are excellent."

Companies have widened the scope of their recruitment of potential candidates for middle and top management to include minorities and women, he said.

Decker noted, however, that many black students tend not to be as active as they could in approaching the job market. "I don't know the reason, but they are not taking advantage of the opportunities. The job openings are there," he said.

Louise Johnson, coordinator of the Office of Minority Affairs job fair, said over 300 students, both black and white, took advantage of the fair to talk to potential employers. Some company recruiters expressed disappointment at the small number of students interviewed with technical backgrounds, she said. "They're definitely looking for qualified minority students in these areas."

Decker said any student entering college who is good in mathematics and science should go into the technical areas.

"That's where the jobs are," he said.

court-ordered desegregation plan which begins this September.

Dissenting were board members Marie Castleman and Bill Moss. Castleman's opposition was based on her support for outside monitors, while Moss' vote was consistent with his stand against the remedy plan.

Board member Dr. David Hamlar also expressed reservations about using a staff member for monitoring, stating he thought it presumptuous to think the school system could objectively monitor the remedy plan.

In the end, however, Hamlar voted in favor of the application. He told the CALL-POST he voted for it because he was assured it would not rule out the possibility of an outside monitoring group.

The question of an independent monitoring group is presently being considered by U.S. District Judge Robert M. Duncan. Such a group would provide an assessment of how a remedy plan was being carried out in such areas as curriculum, busing and discipline.

Davis said a staff member in charge of monitoring would be needed whether or not an outside monitoring group was required.

White board members expressed vehement opposition to the idea of an outside monitoring group. Board member M. Steven Boley, referring to the fact that monitors would not be elected officials, asserted the (outside) monitoring "would effectively end quality education in Columbus."

In a recent letter to Judge Duncan, the Columbus Urban League urged appointment of an outside commission to monitor desegregation implementation.

Dorothy Lenart, Urban League education specialist, said the education committee made the recommendation after a month long study. She said the committee believes such a group would be a positive force for the community, the judge and the school system. "Monitoring will give the school board credibility," she added, "and reinforce that they are following the law."

Lenart said outside monitoring is a common procedure for cities that have desegregated.

recruitment and public education efforts to advance their cause in the future.

"Obviously, our most immediate task is to convince key legislators, especially members of the Judiciary Committee, that Ohio does not need another death penalty law and that maintaining capital punishment is an expensive waste of public resources.

"There certainly is a moral component in what we are trying to accomplish, but the thrust of our argument to the legislators will be focused on practical matters such as how much it costs the taxpayers to maintain a capital punishment system," Maynard said.

Maynard, herself a former practicing attorney and a veteran of the prison reform movement, recently completed a comprehensive study of capital punishment in Ohio from the first execution in 1897 to the most recent in 1963.

The study also covered the period January 1, 1974, to June of this year, during which time 105 persons were sentenced to death.

Ohio's latest capital punishment law went into effect Jan. 1, 1974. It was this law which the U.S. Supreme Court struck down two weeks ago. The 1974 law was enacted to replace an earlier death penalty statute which had been declared unconstitutional by the High Court.

"To those who argue that the death penalty is a deterrent to murder, we offer this: In 1974, the first year of our new capital punishment law – a law that was widely publicized – we had the highest murder rate of any year in Ohio's history – 952," Maynard pointed out.

"Furthermore, only a few of those convicted were actually sentenced to death," Maynard added. "For instance, according to figures compiled by the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Indentification (BCI), out of 766 murders committed in Ohio in 1976, only 34 persons were sent to Death Row.

"Finally, if anyone still believes that capital punishment serves as a deterrent, I would ask them 'how many people have been electrocuted in Ohio since the 1974 law took effect? The answer is none - - not one person has actually been put to death."

Maynard continued: "So here we are with a death penalty that is seldom imposed and, in the case of the 1974 law, never actually executed before being set aside by the U.S. Supreme Court. How can that possibly deter anyone from doing anything?"

Maynard said she and her fellow Coalition members would impress upon legislators and the public the expense involved in keeping prisoners in Death Row facilities and the cost of fighting the numerous appeals and other judicial actions associated with capital punishment cases.

"The taxpayers are paying a heavy price for maintaining this machinery of death, and they are getting nothing of value in return," Maynard said.

"There is no conclusive evidence that the death penalty ever stopped anyone from committing murder, but there is an abundance of persuasive evidence that it deters no one," she stated.

Maynard also said her study showed a highly suspicious disparity between the number of blacks and the number of whites sentenced to death in Ohio.

The Coalition found that approximately one-third of those who died in Ohio's electric chair in the period 1897-1963 were black, although blacks have accounted for no more than one-tenth to one-fifth of the general population.

During that period, 315 people (including three women) were electrocuted by the State. Of that number, 197 were white, 117 were black.

"Since that time, the scales have tipped even further against blacks," Maynard said. "From Jan. 1, 1974 to last month, 105 persons were sentenced to death. Although blacks only make up between 10 and 15 percent of the general population according to census figures, more than 60 percent of those receiving the death penalty were black – 67 out of 105.

"Although that is not the most scientific comparison, it is still apparent that the number of blacks sentenced to death is incredibly high," Maynard continued.

"The Supreme Court's July 3 ruling saved the lives of 101 people in Ohio and several more in other states with similar laws, and that is good. But we won't rest until the United States is free of this abomination called the death penalty once and for all," she concluded.

The Ohio Coalition Against the Death Penalty maintains an office in Columbus at 203 E. Broad St. (Zip 43215).

A total of 28 organizations and institutions are members of the Coalition, including the Ohio Council of Churches, the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio, the Greater Cleveland Interchurch Council, the Columbus and Cleveland Chapters of the National Lawyers Guild, the American Friends Service Committee, Metropolitan Churches United of Dayton, the Prison Crisis Network of Southwest Ohio, and numerous other churches, church-related organizations and other groups.

Citizens' Group Urged To Halt Sawyer Decay

The possibility of a citizens' advisory committee to prevent further physical and moral decay at Sawyer Manor and Sawyer Towers was discussed last week at Neighborhood House by representatives of the Columbus Metropolitan Housing Authority (CMHA), the Neighborhood Development Corp. (NDC), area churches and the public and private sectors.

The meeting was called jointly by CMHA and NDC to discuss problems of the 14 year old public housing project as construction nears completion for NDC's $11.8 million Mt. Vernon Plaza, a rock's throw away from the Sawyer units. NDC director William Potter chaired the informal session.

CMHA director Steve Bollinger admitted that CMHA has been negligent in dealing with problems of crime, vandalism and irresponsible tenants, apologized for the past, and outlined corrective actions programs initiated in the past few months.

He noted that CMHA staff has increased from 210 to 380 in the past seven months and that only a few of the new employees were housed in the administrative offices.

Bollinger noted that the additional CMHA staff members have allowed the agency to beef up security, maintenance, groundskeeping, and management aspects of the CMHA operation.

Of the 170 new employees he said, 150 are funded through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) manpower program, operated by the Columbus Community Services Dept. (The U.S. Congress is currently in the throes of thrashing out legislation which authorizes the existence of the CETA program after Sept. 30, 1978).

Bollinger acknowledged that it would take input from the total community to channel positive change in the total environment surrounding Sawyer and Mt. Vernon Plaza.

He urged area ministers, social service agencies and representatives of the public and private sector join together to form an advisory unit to deal with the problems and implement solutions.

Of special concern of those at the meeting was the relocation of so-called undesirables who have been evicted from Sawyer units and possibly relocated at other public hosuing projects.

CMHA authorities admitted that it was possible that they were relocated in other units.

"We are here to redeem man and redeem the city," said Rev. Leon Troy, of the Second Baptist Church, who urged the committee to take a positive approach to the problems and solutions. "We need a beautiful community and we need beautiful people. We must rebuild the city brick by brick and person by person. As ministers we have a vision of the city. We are stewards of the city."

One possible solution suggested was the formation of a core city pastoral counseling service.

Also in attendance at the meeting were:

Jerome C. Gafford, vice president for community development, F & R Lazarus, Co.; Robert Ramage, CMHA board; Lynne LaCour, City Council aide; Director N. Jack Huddle, Columbus Development Dept.; Wesley Harris, Neighborhood Development Corp.; Ed Thompson, Sylvester Hargrove, Neighborhood House.

I. Ray Miller Lands New Post With AFSCME

Robert A. Brindza, executive director of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) Ohio Council 8, today announced the appointment of I. Ray Miller, Jr., as legislative assistant for the council's office of legislative affairs. In his new position, Miller will be working with AFSCME/Ohio Council 8 director of legislation Tom Morgan.

In the newly created job, Miller will be actively involved in the council's overall legislative program, the AFSCME lobbying effort in the Ohio General Assembly, and the council's political action activities.

Miller comes to AFSCME/Ohio Council 8 from the Correctional Institutions Inspection Committee, a joint Ohio House-Senate oversight committee designed to study the state's penal institutions. Miller served the committee as executive director.

Prior to his association with the oversight committee, Miller was legislative assistant to Ohio Representative C.J. McLin, Jr., (D-Dayton), a post he held for nearly four years.

Miller began work with the Ohio General Assembly through an intern program operated jointly by the legislature and Ohio State University. During his internship, Miller worked in the office of Richard F. Celeste, then a state representative.

I. RAY MILLER JR.
...new labor lobbyist

Miller holds a bachelor of arts degree from OSU, and is nearing completion of his Ph.D in political science, also from OSU.

He has experience in statewide political campaigns in field operations, and he headed the successful 1976 voter registration and get-out-the-vote effort for the Ohio Democratic Party.

Miller, 29, is married and resides in Columbus.

PUSH Leader Speaks At OYC 'Training For Trainers' Conference

Therman Evans, M.D., Washington Bureau Chief, Operation People United to Save Humanity (PUSH), gave the keynote address at the Ohio Youth Commission's conference on "Understanding the Juvenile Offender with Developmental Disabilities" at the Imperial House Arlington on June 29, William K. Willis, OYC director, announced.

Nearly 100 specially selected representatives of each of the OYC's eleven institutions and seven regional offices participated in this training for trainers conference.

In his keynote address Evans discussed advocacy programs for the juvenile offender who is developmentally disabled as well as the obstacles those attending the conference encounter in treating these youths.

"The purpose of the conference was to provide pertinent information concerning the special needs, characteristics and other related problems of juvenile offenders with developmental disabilities," Willis stated.

According to Willis, the conference provided a significant step towards linking the services of two major state agencies – the Ohio Youth Commission and the Department of Mental Health & Mental Retardation. Although the participants were primarily from the Youth Commission, many of the presenters and guests represented Department of Mental Health & Mental Retardation and other related agencies.

The conference was the culmination of a C.E.T.A. demonstration project at the Youth Commission to provide public education on developmental disabilities with the juvenile officer.

The developmentally disabled youths, whom the OYC receives from the juvenile courts, can be characterized as being mildly retarded or epileptic.

THERMAN EVANS, M.D., Washington Bureau Chief, Operation People United to Save Humanity (PUSH) speaking to more than 150 persons attending the Ohio Youth Commission's conference on "Understanding the Juvenile Offender with Developmental Disabilities," emphasizes the importance of good nutrition to the development of young people.

FRAN FRAZIER, Project Coordinator of the Ohio Association of Retarded Citizens' Community Awareness for Deinstitutinalization Project, makes a point during her luncheon address during the Ohio Youth Commission's conference on "Understanding the Juvenile Offender with Developmental Disabilities, June 29.

Federal Glass Co. Future Uncertain

Uncertainty surrounding the sale or liquidation of the Federal Glass Co., 555 Woodrow Ave. will continue for at least another 12 days.

To comply with the suggestion of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) that Federal Glass attempt to find another buyer, the company announced last week that it will engage in investment banking firm for 120 da ys to find a purchaser for the division at a price reflecting the value of the division.

If the company does not find a suitable buyer it will give notice to the FTC no later than Aug. 29 that it will complete the sale of the glassware division to Lancaster Colony Corporation on Oct. 30.

The company believes this plan should satisfy the FTC and prevent the unnecessary hardship of the plant closing.

A spokesperson in the senior vice-president's office said it is very unlikely that Federal Glass will close. However, reports circulated among employees suggested that they had only two to four more months to work. The spokesperson said employees have not been given any termination notice.

"It is just a matter of waiting," she said.

Counseling Black Clients Seminar Set For July 18 By OSU Graduate Students

Ohio State University graduate students enrolled in a seminar, "Counseling the Black Client," instructed by Dr. Richard Kelsey, will hold a conference, "Guidance and Counseling Issues Related to the Black Community," at the Eastside YMCA, 130 Woodland Ave. Tuesday, July 18, from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

Two prominent leaders in the black community will be featured as keynote speakers. Rep. Les Brown, 29th House District, and Rev. Leon Troy, Pastor of Second Baptist Church, will address the conference objective:

To provide information and examine feelings as they relate to perceptions of the black community. Ample time will be allowed for audience participation following the keynote addresses.

The graduate students have identified seven topics to develop and facilitate in small group workshops after the presentation by the keynote speakers. The topics are:

"Desegregation problems and issues related to black clients";

"The role of religious organizations in the black community."

"Problems as related to black families: Elderly, adolescent mothers, child abuse and alcoholism."

"The emergence of self-concept."

"Issues and trends related to testing black clients."

"Communication: Talking with or talking to?" and:

"Identifying positive theoretical and functional materials for black clients."

The topical group, "Desegregation problems and issues related to black clients," will provide a five panelist presentation by these facilitators:

Ms. Delores Diggs, "Teacher attitudes and expectations": Ray MacFarlane, "Discipline"; Amos White, "Multi-Cultural curriculum"; Oliver McAfee, "Career Education"; and Mrs. Gean Norman, "Parent Involvement."

Other resource persons are Carol Lister, Robert Taylor and Jack G. Gibbs. A question and answer period will be provided at the conclusion of the presentations.

"The role of religious organizations in the black community" will be facilitated by prominent ministers in Columbus. Some of the questions to be discussed include:

"Has religion contributed to the brainwashing of black Americans?"; and "Is there truth to this statement: The stronger the belief in a white God-Head, the greater the belief in white supremacy?"

A panel comprised of three resource persons will deal with various aspects of the black family in the group, "Problems as related to the black family." Topics for discussion include adolescent mothers, child abuse, the elderly and alcoholism. Ample time will be allowed for questions from the workshop participants.

"The emergence of self-concept" group will present a brief overview of self-concept; taking into consideration the effect of the family, school, media and external / internal locus of control in personality development. To summarize the topic, the panel will entertain questions from the audience.

"Issues and trends related to testing black clients" will include a general introduction on the testing issue, a review of the research, a discussion of alternative non-standard tests, and a conclusion addressing implications and alternatives to testing for the future.

Open-ended skits will be provided by the group, "Communication: Talking with or talking to?," which will focus on various aspects of the communication process.

The audience, will be asked to participate. Group facilitators will later present a summary covering black dialect, black-white interaction, non-verbal communication and black assertiveness.

An opportunity will be provided all participants to evaluate each small group presentation, as well as the overall conference for general comments and recommendations for future workshops.

The conference is open to all interested parents, students, community leaders, and religious and community organizations.

Additional information can be obtained by calling Alice Flowers, 253-5196 or Stan Embry, 476-0626.

New CTI President Declares Commitment To Affirmative Action

While none of the new deans appointed recently at the Columbus Technical Institute is black, CTI President Harold Nestor told the CALL-POST he is committed to placing more blacks in responsible positions there.

CTI currently has one black administrator, Dr. Harold Brown, who is vice president for education. The new deans were appointed in a recent sweeping reorganization of the college administration. The positions were filled by transfers of existing administrators.

Nestor explained that an affirmative action plan was put in some years ago but has been laying dormant. He said guidelines are now being made, and he has instructed that the plan be placed in absolute operation within 30 days.

Nestor said the guidelines will include making sure every job is posted, so everyone at the school will have the opportunity to apply. If the position can't be filled internally, they will go outside.

He said he is committed to increasing the amounts of minorities in responsible positions, and has told his staff he wants a black professional in each department, "as a goal."

Nestor noted that he had worked on an affirmative action plan with Dr. Watson Walker and Rebecca Redman five years ago when he was interim president, but that nothing was done when the new president came on board.

Nestor took over as president of CTI July 1. He was formerly vice president for business.

Life ends fast enough.

Nothing's so important that it's worth broken bones, broken bodies, broken lives. But time and time again, some daredevil of the highway goes by so fast, it seems as though you're standing still. Where can they all be going in such a hurry? What makes them gamble with their own lives...and jeopardize the health and safety of everyone else on the road?

Your Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans can't lift your foot off the accelerator every time you forget that fifty-five is the maximum speed on the highway. And we can't buckle your seat belt for you. We're helping to hold down health care costs by doing things within our area of influence...like pioneering and broadening ambulatory programs such as pre-admission testing, post discharge testing, same-day surgery and home care...by being involved in utilization review and peer review...by experimenting with second opinion surgical consultation...and, as active participants in the health planning process, by advocating better use of health care resources, discouraging waste and preventing unnecessary duplication of facilities and services.

And, as always, we're helping company groups and individual subscribers get the greatest value out of every health care dollar they spend.

We'll take the responsibility for setting up effective, economical health care programs. But the responsibility for holding down health care costs is something we all share.

Frankly, some of the reasons for the high cost of health care make us sick.

Please, take care of yourself.

Blue Cross.
Blue Shield.

Stadium Job Nets Rags To Riches Fame

By MARY TAYLOR

Rev. Jerry Sellers, assistant stadium supervisor at Franklin County Stadium jokingly refers to himself as a "rags to riches" story.

Two years ago, Sellers, 31, started out as a $2.89 an hour stadium laborer and worked himself up to the $14,000 assistant stadium supervisor position.

Seller supervises 16 ground crew members, about 250 general relief workers and some CETA youth summer workers. His main duties are, according to Sellers, making sure the field is ready to go on ball-game days, keeping the restrooms clean during the game and generally "anything to do with maintenance."

REV. JERRY SELLERS
...ballpark groomer

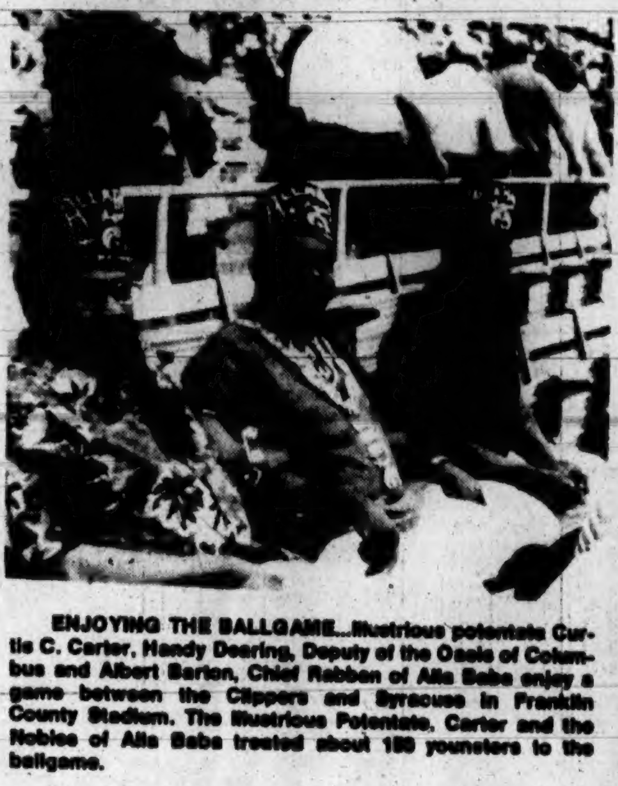
Franklin County Stadium has a reputation of being the best kept park in the major and minor leagues.

Along with his stadium duties he shares the pastoral duties of Holy Temple Church of God with his father Bishop Eli Sellers. He has been a minister for 15 years.

Sellers calls himself a "working supervisor." "I don't have anybody do anything I wouldn't do."

He credits a good working relationship with his employees and his boss, Stadium Superintendent, Dick Fitzpatrick, to mutual respect. Sellers said his boss "doesn't treat you like he is a boss. We're more like brothers."

He started working there during the renovation process. "We did everything but take the roof off," Sellers said.



ENJOYING THE BALLGAME...Illustrious potentate Curtis C. Carter, Handy Dearing, Deputy of the Oasis of Columbus and Albert Barton, Chief Rabban of Alla Baba enjoy a game between the Clippers and Syracuse in Franklin County Stadium. The Illustrious Potentate, Carter and the Nobles of Alla Baba treated about 150 younsters to the ballgame.

Elder Wins $1 000 Milwaukee Golf Tilt

Lee Elder won the $150,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament last Sunday by defeating Lee Trevino in a sudden death playoff. Both finished the regular course at 275, 13 under par. This was Elder first victory since he won the 1976 Houston Open.

The two golfers blew many short birdie putts in the playoff struggle. Elder credit Trevino's sense of humor for keeping him loose. This victory earned Elder first place money of $30,000 and evened the count with Trevino, who defeated him in a playoff in the 1972 Greater Hartford Open.

Swim Pools Must Be Inspected

Installation of any backyard swimming pool in Columbus which will hold 30 inches of water, whether in or above ground, must have prior approval of the Columbus Health Department, according to Dr. Robert K. Arnold, deputy health commissioner and director of environmental health services.

Arnold said there are city codes and regulations which have been designed to insure proper installation and operation of swimming pools, as well as to provide maximum health and safety features.

Plans for backyard pools are reviewed for such things as filter backwash, location of electrical lines, filtration and sanitary equipment among others. A city code requires all swimming pools within the city– public and private–to be enclosed with a minimum 42-inch barrier with self-closing, locking gates.

The deputy health commissioner stated that a problem arises with backyard pools because do-it-yourself installers may not be aware they must submit plans to the health department before installation. How many such pools in the community are in violation of city codes is [illegible] [illegible] could number in the hundreds.

The health department makes weekly inspections of the 300 public swimming pools in the city during their operation, but does not have the authority to inspect private pools. Arnold said, however, the health department does respond to complaints regarding backyard pools.

Humanitarian Awards Highlights Opening Of OAB 41st Convention

The Ohio Association of Beauticians, Inc., 41st annual convention will start off with a boom Saturday at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel, 50 N. Third St.

Two exciting events for the day are a Plush Pool Fashionette in the afternoon at 3 with "Fun in the Sun" fashions, and the "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother" Humanitarian Awards at 7 o'clock. The awards ceremony will be followed by a ball for those who wish to remain. Refreshments are to be served.

State Rep. Les Brown and Pat Reed, model and registered nurse, will present awards to persons in the local community who have strived for excellence in their particular field of endeavor.

Honorees for 1978 include:

Amanda Broadus, for beauty, both inside and out. A professional model and fashion coordinator, she is well known in the city and "her beauty shines on the sick, the shut-in and the bereaved when she visits them. She attempts to create a ray of sunshine, happiness and goodwill."

Dr. B. Bernard Caplan, MD, outstanding contributor to the community in the field of philanthrophy. A true example of "He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother," he has done so much in his role in life of giving and caring, and has received 41 humanitarian awards and recognitions during his career.

John B. Combs, known and respected throughout the state, for excellence in the field of journalism. Editor of The Columbus CALL & POST, he has served the public for many years, editing, writing and keeping the people informed.

Tom Fullove, a giant among men who always answers the call. Mention the NAACP and our minds quickly think of Tom Fullove, humanitarian award recipient for excellence in uniting large numbers in brotherhood and respect.

Mildred Ford, in the field of community politics. She's the lady behind the scenes, doing the footwork and the house-to-house visits. Ms. Ford informs others that there is power in numbers and organizing around issues is vital. She's always there when needed.

ODELLA T. WELCH
...community services dir.

Roger Germany, in the field of community organization. This champion of people has worked on the Westside for many years. He'll always be known as "Mr. Hilltop." "Brighten the corner where you are" has been a philosophy he has truly lived by.

Albert Mason Hawkins, a man about town who'll lend a helping hand whenever needed. He is being cited for his excellence as he strives to make a better, healthier, happier you. "Have a Heart" is his motto and he truly has a heart.

Charles L. James, for excellence in working with youths in the community. Fondly known to them as "Jazzy," he's been active for over 15 years helping youths to help themselves.

Russell W. Pace Sr., for his strive to excellence in the church, community and classroom setting (the Big C's). Ask any of his students at Franklin University, where he's coming from, and the answer will be the same, "He walks upstanding to be outstanding." A proud black man who truly believes Martin Luther King's remarks, "I can never be what I ought to be, until you are what you ought to be!"

Bettye Robinson, for her excellence with children and especially in the field of dancing. Her dance school at 1627 E. Main St. presents one of the finest recitals ever. Poise and confidence helps to develop character, an important aspect of development. A must with the Bettye Robinson Dancers.

Pat Scott, in the field of public relations. Put it in the hands of "Great Scott" and your project will definitely be a success. She is a creator of humane relationships in all fields of business.

Odella T. Welch, excellent in management, coordination and evaluation of social and human services. She is director of the City Dept. of Community Services. "Happiness is not so much in having or sharing. We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give."

Music for the Mid-Summer's Night Ball will be by the Freeze 'n Heat Band.

MacLachlan Featured In 'Big Event'

Janet MacLachlan, one of Hollywood's busiest black actresses, has a featured role in the upcoming NBC "Big Event" production, "Darker Than Amber," an action drama to telecast Tuesday, July 25, in the 9-11 p.m. slot on WCMH-TV4 locally.

Rod Taylor stars as a tough Florida salvager who rescues an attractive woman (Suzy Kendall) from a bay and later pursues her killers when she becomes the victim of a gang of criminals.

Theodore Bikel also stars.

PRAYER TIME AND VOTING TIME

There is a time to pray and there is a time to vote. Sadly enough, the Black Community does not do enough of either one.

The City Council has set all day Sunday, August 13th as the date for the Recall Election. We do not pretend at this time to discuss that issue. We do however, wish to make our decision very clear that is that Sunday voting can be accomplished by the most orthodox Sunday worshippers as well as the Reformed and Enlightened Sunday worshippers.

First, it should be pointed out that all religions do not observe Sunday as their Sabbath. Those who worship on days other than Sunday, are given the opportunity to vote on Sunday. Moreover, there is no biblical injunction that we have found that prohibits elections on Sunday.

Indeed, in the transcripts of the trial of Jesus, it was the arbitrary actions of Pontius Pilate, trial without jury and conviction without a plebiscite that gave the Christians their strongest rallying points. It has become a part of the responsibility of the enlightened clergy to exhort their congregations to exercise their civil duty and civil rights by voting. To say to their memberships not to vote on Sunday simply because it is the Lord's day is too simplistic. For those religious purist who do not believe one should vote on Sunday, then they should follow all purist beliefs and start prayer at sundown on Saturday, fast from sunrise on Sunday morning to sunset, not drive a car, not buy anything at a store or touch money on Sunday, and remain so pure and dedicated as to "stay in the temple all day and give reverence."

We do not see any of this purist orthodox theology being practiced on Sunday in Cleveland. For those who do, the law has provided you with a means of discharging your religious responsibilities and at the same time fulfill your civil duty to vote - that is - The Absentee Ballot. Churches should provide those ballots to their members who feel they cannot vote on Sunday.

Since many churches and ministers have little hesitency blessing donations from politicians at Sunday Services, it seems hypocritical to get sanctified all of a sudden on the Sunday vote issue.

A staunch practicing religious person can go to Church, pray , remain holy and fulfill his Sunday commitment to God. Leave church and vote, or vote another day by Absentee Ballot.

By whatever means, every Clevelander must vote on the recall by voting in advance on a day other than Sunday or by voting in person on Sunday, August 13th.

Black Cops Gripe Justified

Contending that they are not getting a fair-shake within the Columbus Police Dept. several black officers have organized an "Equal Rights" group through which its grievances will be transmitted to the powers that be.

The group declined to outline their alleged racial discrimination within the department at a recent meeting with Chief Earl Burden and Safety Director Bernard Chupka because of the "short notice."

Officer Jodie Reeder, the group spokesman, said they will "negotiate with" and talk with Burden and Chupka at a later, undetermined date and time.

Chupka insisted that he ordered the 26 black male and female officers to the City Hall meeting because he was distressed, not by the rights of the organization, but rather by a comment attribute to one of the black officers by the daily press.

The statement attributed to the officer said "it's difficult to maintain your enthusiasm for the job in face of sergeants and other superiors you know are issuing reprimands and doing their things based upon race."

In light of the well known fact that racial discrimination does, and always has been an open secret within the police department operation, we feel that the black officers were justified in forming the organization.

And moreover, since the black officers have filed a suit in federal court seeking changes in the police divisions' promotional system, it seems to us that they were on legally safe ground in declining to discuss the matter while the case is pending in the U.S. District Court.

A Heck Of A Way To Run The Schools

For some unrevealed reason, the desegregation school case in Cleveland has developed more outlandish decisions than in any other city.

Twice the Court of Appeals has sent decisions of Judge Frank J. Battisti back to him for restudy. The latest one was last week. This involved the powers given by Judge Battisti to Dr. Charles W. Leftwich which virtually made him a czar and put him above the power of the Cleveland Board of Education in the operation of the Cleveland public schools.

For some reason, Judge Battisti keeps adding new layers of management to the desegregation operation. Each one adds more expense to the already broke school's budget.

The latest is a monitoring group with monthly salaries totaling $13,706.00, plus operating expense. When you add up the expense of Daniel R. McCarthy's office and staff, the cost of Dr. Leftwich's staff and operating expense, plus the cost of the Superintendent of Cleveland's public school's staff, you come up with an astronominical figure. But, this is not all that desegregation is costing. You must add the cost of the Board of Education's lawyers and, the not yet presented bill of the NAACP's lawyers. The total of all of these, will make the Cleveland desegregation case the most expensive in the nation.

Not only, will it be the most expensive, but, from the way things are now going, it will also be the most confused.

It is too bad that a more harmonious climate could not have been generated for an issue so controversial, and emotional.

The ever increasing cost this desegregation case is generating, is making it more and more unpalatable to the people who must not only pay the bill, but send their children to schools that are being so poorly prepared for them.

Black Officials Under Attack

Are black elected officials under attack? Is it true that they are the object of a disproportionate amount of harassment? Although these rumors have been circulating throughout the country for the past several months, we have never really been able to get a firm handle on them.

However, a disturbing report just crossed my desk entitled, "The Dilemma of Black Politics: A Report on Harassment of Black Elected Officials" shed some light on this subject upon the completion of a two year study by the National Association of Human Rights Workers.

The report documents what appears to be "systematic and nationwide harassment of black elected officials along with those who have been appointed to high level local, state and federal positions.

Indeed over 100 black officials have been victims of various forms of harassment. These officials represent all regions of the U.S. and are from both rural and urban areas. This research study advised that "the higher the level of office or more outspoken the official, or the greater the influence and power, the higher the incidence of harassment.

The list of those black officials identified as having been victims of such abuse include the late U.S. Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, U.S. Rep. William Clay, Lt. Gov. George Brown, Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, and Secretary of State C. Delores Tucker, Mayors Maynard Jackson, Richard Hatcher, Coleman Young, "Jay" Cooper and Charles Evers, former Mayor Carl Stokes, Clarence Lightner and Charles Joseph, State Senators Julian Bond and Clarence Mitchell, former State Senator Leroy Johnson, State Rep. Alvin Holmes, Thomas Reed and Hosea Williams and Sheriff Lucius Amerson.

These attacks on black elected officials have been [illegible] "1) the white press; 2) the intelligence community and enforcement agencies; 3) the corporate structure and 4) representatives and allies of the corporate structure positioned in executive and legislative branches of the U.S. government."

Although the research did not confirm the existence of a single national or international conspiracy it documented a distinct pattern of harassment.

The Bakke Case: Confusing or Clear

There are as many interpretations of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in the Bakke case as there are experts both in and out of the law.

There apparently is something in it for everyone.

Rev. Jonnah Chang of the United Methodist Church says: "This is a great setback!" Louis W. Schneider of American Friends Service Committee said: "We had hoped that the Justices would have reached greater unity on the issues raised in the Bakke case."

Willie Mae Reid, Socialist Workers Party says: "– the gains of blacks, of women, of all oppressed have been dealt a heavy blow by the Supreme Court decision against affirmative action quotas."

Kiplinger's letter to business says: "It won't be of any help to you as a guide for company employment policy." Christopher F. Edley, United Negro College Fund says: "the decision is not as negative as it could have been, neither is it as positive as would be desirable."

Howard M. Squadron, American Jewish Congress says: (his organization) was "gratified that the Court has struck down the use of quota systems and has barred the use of race as the sole predominent criterion for such admissions."

Cong. Ron V. Dellums: "I am appalled by the Court's decision." Ralph Smith, law professor, University Pennsylvania and National Conference of Black Lawyers: "It is our only hope that the court hasn't become the assassin of affirmative action."

Dr. Joseph Lowery, SCLC: "I think that the court in a sense has affirmed affirmative action." Mrs. Eleanor Holmes Norton, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission: "Employers continue to have obligations to correct past discrimination."

Wade H. McCree Jr., Solicitor General, United States: "I was gratified by the fact that the majority opinion – pulling four and one together – very closely tracked the governments belief in vindicating the principle of affirmative action."

Now here is what Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall said: (Following are excerpts from Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall's opinion in the Bakke case. Marshall is the only black on the High Court.)

"I agree with the judgment of the court only insofar as it permits a university to consider the race of an applicant in making admissions decisions. I do not agree that petitioner's admissions programs violate the Constitution. For it must be remembered that, during most of the past 200 years, the Constitution as interpreted by this court did not prohibit the most ingenious and pervasive forms of discrimination against the Negro. Now, when a state acts to remedy the effects of that legacy of discrimination. I cannot believe that this same Constitution stands as a barrier ...

"At every point from birth to death, the impact of the past is reflected in the still disfavored position of the Negro. In light of the sorry history of discrimination and its devastating impact on the lives of Negroes, bringing the Negro into the mainstream of American life, should be a state interest of the highest order. To fail to do so is to ensure that America will forever remain a divided society.

"I do not believe that the Fourteenth Amendment requires us to accept that fate. Neither its history nor our past cases lend any support to the conclusion that a university may not remedy the cumulative effects of society's discrimination by giving consideration to race in an effort to increase the number and percentage of Negro doctors.....

"The experience of Negroes in America has been different in kinds, not just in degree, from that of other ethnic groups. It is not merely the history of slavery alone, but also that a whole people are marked as inferior by the law ...

"These differences in the existence of the Negro make it difficult for me to accept that Negroes cannot be afforded greater protection under the Fourteenth Amendment where it is necessary to remedy the effects of past discrimination.

"... I do not believe that anyone can truly look into America's past and still find that a remedy for the effects of that past is impermissible.

"It has been said that this case involves only the individual, Bakke and this university.

"I doubt, however, that there is a computer capable of determining the number of persons and institutions that may be affected by the decision in this case. For example, we are told by the attorney general of the United States, that at least 27 federal agencies have adopted regulations requiring recipients of federal funds to take 'affirmative action to overcome the effects of conditions which resulted in limiting participation ... by persons of a particular race, color or national origin.' I cannot even guess the number of state and local governments that have set up affirmative action programs, which may be affected by today's decision."

From the many shadings these opinions reflect, it is now evident that the Bakke case will spawn many other lawsuits and, involve the issue in many years of litigation. Remember the 1954 Supreme Court decision in the school desegregation case is still being litigated throughout the nation.

Perhaps some day in the distant future, this nation will stop trying to divide equality on the basis of race.

Source Material

It would seem logical that the longer a fellow writes a weekly column for a black newspaper the easier the job would become.

After more than 50 years of such writing, 43 of them from a desk at the Cleveland Call & Post, seems like a writer would never be at a loss for a subject to write about.

But the deeper the well of memory, that is there for the probing, the murkier the material. Because things change the world moves on, tastes change, and the only, "Rock of Gibralter quality about American life seems to be the black - white racism that keeps America from being the most perfect country for the most advanced segment of the "Worlds" people.

Right in the middle of changes comes an out of the ordinary jolt. We are told a fine person, John Frew Morning, one of those rare talented young products of Cleveland - Chicago community is dead. Making us realize how rapidly our source of business leadership, which is more needed than ever, is dwindling without proper replacement.

It's not easy to think of retiring from the Call & Post. I probably never will entirely. Memories, good and bitter, crowd in, but the old Fox keeps looking for some writing talent that can compare with Larry Doby's feats on the sports field.

Rep. Rankin Had A Dream

State Rep. James W. Rankin, (D-Cincinnati), who died June 28 in Christ Hospital at the age of 52, was somewhat like Dr. Martin L. King Jr., in that he too had a dream that did not come true during his lifetime.

Dr. King's dream that some day black and white children would play together, eat together, etc. etc., was shared with the world in his historical speech at Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C.

Rankin's dream, which he often shared with this writer in the chambers of the Ohio House, was that some day, he would see a black woman serving in the Ohio Legislature. He felt so strongly about this dream that he suggested that he would be willing to give up his House seat if he was assured that a black woman would be named as his successor.

Whether he ever discussed his dream with his colleagues or Democratic Party leaders, is open to question, but it was one of his favorite conversation pieces when talking about politics with yours truly.

And since he has been removed from office by the inevitable, death, it would be a great tribute to his memory if the Hamilton County Democratic leaders would fulfill one of his most fondest dreams.

Perhaps the party will follow the lead Republicans took several years ago when the late A. Bruce McClure, also a black Cincinnatian died while serving in the Ohio House. McClure, like Rankin, had been nominated to succeed himself when he died of cancer. The Hamilton County Repulican Party chose his wife, Mrs. A. Bruce McClure to replace him on the ballot. She was defeated by a Democrat in the November general election.

The Democrats are in an excellent position to make history repeat itself by naming Mrs. James W. Rankin to succeed her late husband on the ballot in November. Success in such a venture, would not only be a lasting tribute to his memory, it would dramatically fulfill a dream of a long and faithful public servant that was only a faint mirage during his lifetime.

Incidentally, Rankin's death due to pneumonia, was a fate two black Cincinnati state representatives suffered in years past. McClure in the early 1960's and the Rev. David D. Turpeau, who died in the late 1950's while holding seats in the Ohio House. Both were Republicans. McClure, an attorney, succeeded Turpeau and was serving his third term when his career was terminated by cancer.

Another distinguished black Cincinnati politician, Jesse L. Locker, was also fatally stricken while holding a high diplomatic position. He suffered a fatal heart attack while serving as Ambassador to Liberia, W. Africa.

A few years later, yet another black Cincinnatian, Judge William Lovelace, expired while in office. Locker was nominated for the ambassadorship by the late U.S. Senator Robert A. Taft and was appointed by President Eisenhower. Lovelace became the first Hamilton County black judge when appointed by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Bakke Decision Has Positives

Why the great rush to interpret the Supreme Court's Bakke decision as being bad for blacks? "We Lose" headlines in the black press and gleeful "Bakke Wins" headlines in the majority press both miss the point of the decision.

I don't think the Court should have turned down the admissions program at the University of California at Davis, but it did. The real importance of the decision however, was not the striking down of a single program, but the Court's affirmation that race may be used as a factor in admissions programs.

Not only did the Court give its constitutional blessings to the kinds of affirmative action programs in effect in nearly all of our nation's educational and employment institutions, but it clarified the limits of such programs. By setting such boundaries, the Court's action should result in increased use of affirmative action programs.

In the larger context, then, whether Bakke gets into the school of his choice or whether the University's program is upheld or not becomes less important than the preservation of the principle of affirmative action programs that use race as a factor in allocating entrance to schools.

Sure, it would have been a lot better if the Court upheld the admissions system in question. It almost did just that. Four justices would have approved the University's program as constitutional. The swing judge in the 5-4 decision, Justice Powell, didn't go along.

Justice Powell rejected rigid racially-based affirmative action programs but went out of his way to cite some examples of successful programs that meet the Court's standards of constutionality. In effect he was saying: "Look, you can't do it this way, but here's an example of how you can give minorities preference." So the Court's majority, in rejecting one such program, gave most present affirmative action programs its seal of approval.

So blacks and minorities didn't "lose" the Bakke Case. We may not have won the victory we wanted, but we averted the defeat that would truly have been crushing – a ruling that invalidated race as a factor in affirmative action.

If the Court had ruled, for example, that such programs must be open to all disadvantaged people, the sheer numbers of the white disadvantaged would have squeezed out minorities from those programs, freezing minority disadvantage into intolerable permanence.

The Court wisely rejected such a step. It understood that, as Justice Marshall eloquently wrote in his opinion, "It is because of a legacy of unequal treatment that we must now permit the institutions of this society to give consideration to race in making decisions about who will hold the positions of influence, affluence, and prestige in America."

And Justice Blackmun, widely regarded as one of the Court's conservatives, backed the University's system of outright numerical set-asides for minorities. He wrote: "In order to go beyond racism, we must first take account of race. There is no other way. And in order to treat some persons equally, we must treat them differently. We cannot – we dare not – let the Equal Protection Clause perpetrate racial supremacy."

And Justice Brennan wrote that the "goal of admitting minority students disadvantaged by the effects of past discrimination is sufficiently important to justify use of race-conscious criteria."

The Constitution may be, as some hold, "color-blind." But our society is not. Therefore, the Constitution must be interpreted in accord with the reality of our society. The goals of equality and equal rights must be pursued through specific programs designed to grant minorities the positive preferences needed to make up for the negative preferences they've received.

AS I SEE IT

by Lucius E. Lee,

Call & Post Columbus Bureau

Taxpayers Need A Rest

There have passed several weeks since the polls closed and left so many project promoters, planners and governmental officials stunned. So many ideas went down the drain pipe at the polls and the promoters are still writhing, wondering what happened. It was all very simple—voters just grew tired of more and more money being taken from their budgets and their earnings for first one thing and then another.

The school levy met defeat. It did not know defeat but the tax payers said no this last time and meant it. Estimaters predicted virtual disaster if it was not passed, and the voters expressed an attitude that they do not care. They said, in so much negation of more tax approval, 'get busy and trim expense corners, practice an austerity program, cut out numerous frills and over decoration - economize - economize-the country is on a run-away inflation spree.

Last year the black caucus of the Ohio Legislature bolted because the legislature could not see the need of nearly half a million dollars to be added to the Central State University appropriation to build the school's president a new home. There may be a retort that other state university presidents have mansions, but has the particular president's health been impaired of late because he does not dwell in a six figure home close to a half million? Does his efficiency in school administration suffer because his dwelling is not expensively mansion wise? The whole scheme was a blight on the taxpayer's intelligence.

There arose the proposal to build a great Columbus sports arena. Capital idea to have one; such a building could do so much for the city sportswise, but the voters felt that they could not afford the arena. It met defeat at the polls. Blacks disappointed people attributed the defeat at the polls on the calling the arena 'the Jesse Owens Sports Arena' and declared that the white people thumbs downed it because they didn't want it donned with a black man's name.

Whatever the proposed name may have been, it is safe to conjecture that it would have lost at the polls. The public pocket simply tires at the continued nibbling at the purse. There are those who say that the public can afford, but the voters tired of the constant drain on the pocketbooks. Every time a voter gets a little extra cash or regular cash, which might enable him to salt it away and grow more secure with his savings, his plans have to go away to take care of some project or to save some public service from going under.

The negative vote is turning out to be the reading of the 'riot act' to the promulgators of schemes. It is time that there be a care taken with appropriations for support of public projects. Certainly school men should apply some of the doctrines taught on economy and frugality and not have to come along almost every election begging for increased funds. The public grows tired of paying through the nose.

To examine a reaction all one has to do is to brush up on his memory of a year or two ago when the public library was desperate for funds to exist on and the polls favored extra money to save the library. Visit the library now and see what has been done with the money. There were halls that served the public adequately over the years but now they are being redone completely with carpeting and old locations of material have shifted to other quarters. Sensible? The directors know their business but what is the need in inflation times? The citizens pay the cost.

Columbus needs a sports arena and there ought to be one but should not those, advocating it, find another means than through the voters pocketbook? A small Ohio town built itself an arena and swimming pool lately out of donations and not a red cent of tax money. If a small town of 10,000 can build a million dollar project, cannot a city of over a half million collect funds to do the same without taxes for a sports arena?

The polls declared that the point of complete saturation has been reached in draining the voter's purse. The point of complete saturation is when a rag has been dipped in water to the point when the water begins to run off. The tax payers' pocketbook has just about reached that point where there is no more moor for tax abortion and the voters have to say 'no.'

A lot of developments follow a tax increase rejection but the developments will have to turn to frugality. The school president does not need the splendor of a half million dollar dwelling place be he black or white. The city of Columbus does need a sports arena to enhance its status of a big city but let sports lovers chip in and build one like lovers of opera and symphonies have done to support their projects. Give the public purse a rest.

discredit black officials are lack of coverage, biased coverage, investigations, and unfounded criminal accusations by the white dominated media, audits and investigations by IRA, surveillance, bugging, burglaries and covert disruptive activity by intelligence agencies, and inquiries, grand jury investigations and allegations by law enforcement agencies.

These activities frequently take the form of vicious, vindictive witchhunts which aim at damaging or destroying the credibility of the officials involved, though the accusations of wrong-doing are never proven.

The rough and tumble nature of political life in this country is marked by many of these unpleasantries. However, the character, volume and intensity of these tactics is far in excess of what might be normally and reasonably expected by virtue of being candidate for or holder of a public office.

The report concludes that "in nearly every respect, black officials are judged by a double standard. They are required to be more scrupulous, more above reproach, more competent, more effective than their white counterparts."

The Bakke decision was no defeat, but it was no victory either. It is a way-station on the road toward further clarification of what kinds of affirmative action shall be permitted. Carolyn Watts Looks Back On Many Eventful Years In Capital City

By MICKI SELTZER

When Carolyn Watts came to Columbus six years ago, she was just another rookie lawyer, fresh out of law school. Now as she looks back on those years, she finds it hard to believe the things that have happened in that time.

Watts relaxed in her office at the Legal Aid Society during one of her last days as director there. After a vacation in Europe, she will head for Cleveland to take a position as assistant U.S. attorney.

The fact that Watts came to Columbus just six years ago, and was just out of law school at the time, probably comes as surprise to many area persons. In that short time, her name became well known in the community, first as the attorney in the police and fire fighters cases and then as executive director of the Legal Aid Society of Columbus. As chance would have it, Watt's exit from Columbus comes just a little over a week after the issuing of a final order on the police case.

It was not the original plan of the Cleveland native to stay here as long as she did.

"I came here the day after graduation from law school," she said, and planned to stay a year at the job that was waiting for me with the Ohio Housing Development Board. After that, I intended to go back home and start a private practice with friends.

After six months with the Board and six months with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Watts was torn about whether to stay in Columbus or return to Cleveland.

"I was impressed by the fact that Columbus didn't have many black attorneys," she explained. There were great opportunities for practice ... and no one was really involved in trying to make any significant changes in the community – changes that I thought were really needed to bring Columbus out of the dark ages.

"Bill Davis talked me into leaving HUD and coming into practice with him," she said. (Davis, now deceased, was the city's leading civil rights attorney for many years.) "I just hung up the shingle on Long Street without a dime in my pocket and waited on the first client. That was the start. I began to get involved in Columbus and it really became more my home. People started forgetting I was from someplace else."

Watts' year with Davis was turbulent but instructive.

"There were a lot of things that were not good about it," she said, "but there were an awful lot of things I would never have started on had it not been for him. If I was wary about doing something, he would tell me to go ahead and sue the (mumble, mumble). I would say, "Oh man, this man' is crazy,' but pretty soon he had me doing all of that stuff, and I was doing it and I liked it. It was real exciting practicing with him. Not that we got along perfectly, because he had some strong ideas and I had some strong ideas. It was only natural that we were going to clash from time to time."

"Davis' advice," Watts recalled, "was 'sue anybody.' The main thing was not to be concerned about the particular individual you might be bringing a claim against, and what their defenses might be, so much as you are concerned about getting all your client's points out."

It was during her year with Davis that Watts became involved in the police and fire fighter cases. Asked about her reaction to the final order in that case, Watts said she is not 100 percent satisfied, but is "glad the court will order back pay relief for people who have been discriminated against in the past."

"I'm disappointed because of the reduction from 45 to 30 percent," she said, "but it's something that can be changed with updated population statistics. I'd still like to have 45 percent as the goal, but constitutional questions are being raised about the legality of goals overall. Weighing that against the fact that it could possibly end up in the Supreme Court behind some decision that says goals are illegal, I think it was the best thing we could do to protect a quota at the present time."

Watts said she will not appeal the suit, and the other side has agreed not to appeal. "It was sort of a give and take. I'm not completely happy, and the other side is not completely happy because it's going to cost Mayor Moody a bunch of money."

"My hope is in 1980, when we get new population statistics, Fred (Fred Rensler, the other attorney for the plaintiffs) will try to get a modification of the order to reflect the current population of minorities here."

Watts was in practice in the office of Otto Beatty Jr., when she was offered the position as executive director of the Legal Aid Society. Having never done any administrative work before – "I couldn't even balance my own checkbook" – she found the position to be "a tremendous challenge".

Watts believes she has been effective. "The things I've been doing the last three years are not visible to the average person, but the effects have been really substantial," she said. "We've expanded programs and even though legal services are still not available to all, we're serving far more people than three years ago, and people are getting better service than they did three years ago."

Under Watts' leadership, the Legal Aid and Defender Society split into two separate entities, a civil program and a defender program. Watts had the job of overseeing the disentanglement and generating additional funds for the civil program, which remained under her jurisdiction after the split. Watts relates with pride that the civil program (Legal Aid Society) now has a larger staff and budget than the combined program had when she first came to the agency.

She said she is leaving with some reluctance, since the Society is now in the process of expanding to the outlying counties surrounding Columbus, which do not now have legal services programs.

"My main hope," she said, "is that the new director will take an assertive effort to see that expansion occurs in '79."

Looking back on her original dream of bringing Columbus out of the dark ages, does she feel she's had any impact?

"I hope so," she responded. "I feel I have. I don't want to overstate it because Columbus has a long way to go, still a lot of things need to be done here. With regard to efforts to get full employment for minorities, I've had some effect, in the civil rights area. I know I've had an effect as far as legal services is concerned."

What will she be glad to leave behind?

"Complacency, apathy, old fashioned ideas, resistance to innovation."

Expellees Can Return To Mozambique

MAPUTO, Mozambique—(PANA)—President Samora Machel has allowed 80 people who were expelled from Mozambique in March last year to return, according to a presidential statement. Last year hundreds of people were expelled from Mozambique after giving up their Mozambican nationality.

Mozambicans were given three months after the country's independence in June, 1975, to decide what nationality they would take, but many people changed after that date.

16 Year Old Wins With Chicken

Yvonne Thomas of Wilmington, Delaware, won that state's chicken cooking contest, a cash award and a chance to go on to the National contest to be held in July in Tampa, Fla. Yvonne was the only black contestant in the Tri-State cook-off (Delaware, Maryland and Virginia), and won with a recipe for China Town Almond Chicken. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomas, Yvonne is one of seven children, a ninth grade student at Wilmington High. She hopes to win $10,000 in the big contest.

China Town Almond Chicken

2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved, boned, skinned and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon ginger
1/3 cup sherry
3 tablespoons water
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1/4 cup cooking oil
1 cup whole almonds
2 packages (6 oz. each) frozen Chinese pea pods, thawed

In bowl mix cornstarch, sugar and ginger. Add sherry, water and soy sauce and stir to mix. In wok place oil and heat to medium temperature. Add almonds; stir and cook about 3 minutes. Add chicken and cook about 5 minutes or until meat turns white and fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Pour in sherry mixture. Cook until sauce thickens. Add pea pods and stir-fry until hot and glazed. Served immediately. Makes 4 servings. (Fry pan may be used in place of wok.)

D. C. Carrousels Super Elegant In Hosting Annual National Conclave

The Carrousel's National Conclave hosted by the Washington, D.C. Chapter drew raves from Columbusites who attended. They described the conclave as a super elegant social event, thoughtfully planned by hostesses who have mastered the fine art of party giving.

The L'Efant Plaza, one of the most elegant hotels in the Washington area, was the conclave headquarters. Accommodations there include a stocked bar of top shelf liquor in each room.

Friday evening they were whisked away from the hotel in English styled double decker buses. Their destination was the Neiman Marcus Department store, that was closed to everyone else except Carrousel's and their escorts.

They were greeted at the door by sales women wearing cocktails clothes and gents in dark suits with white gloves on. They were wined and dined in the store and permitted to shop at their leisure. Saturday, there was a luncheon and officers for the 1978-80 club years were installed. A four of the White House that included places usually off limits. Saturday night they were treated to a fabulous luau in the hotel that rivaled anything that Hawaii has to offer.

Sunday's brunch was special, particularly for Glenna Watson, a co-founder of the organization. She was presented an engraved pen and pencil set for having conceived of the Carrousel Club, which began right here in Columbus.

The Carrousels returned home with delightful memories and a souvenir paper weight with their symbol, a carrousel, enclosed.

Members of the Columbus Chapter of Carrousels who attended the conclave are: Millicent (Shirley) Cellion, Joan and Bill Thornton, Gloria and James Jones, Glenna and Oscar Watson, Joreece and Harold Smith, Rosalyn Beatty, Anita and Johnny Watkins, Pat and John Huggard, Dorothy and "Nap" Bell and Doris Coles.

CALL & POST Social Panorama -

By Millie Chavous

Cocktail Chit-Chat

Wedding Bells: About the only topic being discussed around Dr. and Mrs. David (Maxine) Hamlar's home these days, is the upcoming marriage of their daughter Jocelyn to Roy A. Clark, on Aug. 12. Maxine says cheerfully "There are a zillion details to be taken care of."

Birthdays: Our Cancerian friends Lou Preston, Roberta Basnett and Terri Walker will celebrate birthdays this month. Lou had her day on July 4th and the nation celebrated with her. Roberta's and Terri's are yet to come.

Anniversaries: Three well known couples celebrated their Wedding Anniversaries earlier this month. They are Judge and Mrs. Robert Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Henderson and Judge and Mrs. James A. Pearson who are still chuckling over their four year old grandson's statement that "if you eat pork, you'll get sick and never see your parents again."

A Pleasant Afternoon: The Elegants Social Club installed both new members and their 1978-79 officers at a pleasant lawn party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John (Marie) Castleman. The wines and the hors d'oeuvres were delicious and unlimited, a combination much too tempting for dieters.

The 1978-79 officers are Cora Jordan, president; Marie Castleman, vice-president; Marion Bannister, recording secretary; Janice Howell, corresponding secretary; Bettye Robinson, treasurer; Delphine Howard, assistant treasurer; and Evelyn Manuel, historian.

New members installed into the Elegants Social Club were Katherine Starks, Viola Green, Cheneva (Chee) Hayden and Linda Ross. Other members are Jean Hamilton, Sylvia Jackson, Malcoma Sunderland, Shirley Wilson, Dorothy Bell, Jeanne Bowen, Sonja Bronson, Evelyn Clark and Robbie Cromwell.

Good News For All Of You; It will be your distinct pleasure and luck to read a future Social Panorama column by Dr. Margaret Roberts, a very capable gal. I am sure you will enjoy her journalist style.

Benefit: The Columbus Cancer Clinic Rays is sponsoring "Second Time Around" at the Country Dinner Playhouse. Mr. and Mrs. Pat O'Brien will star in the comedy about two people deciding to live together and the problems they have in breaking it to their children. The evening of July 28 has been reserved for the fund raising event.

A Step Up The Ladder: Jennifer and Bill Butler are moving to Washington, D.C. and they made their exit in an unusual fashion. They reversed the situation, they gave a big party and invited their friends to come, it made everyone happy and saved them a lot of time. Dr. Jennifer will become a dean at Howard University and Bill will join the business world.

Elected: The Columbus Chapter of Circle-Lets officers for the 1978-79 club year are Terri Walker, president, Dolores White, vice-president and Joan Thornton, corresponding secretary. Maxine Hamlar and Loyce Scott were both re-elected to serve a second term in their respective offices. Maxine is the recording secretary and Loyce is the chapter's treasurer.

Almost a Surprise: When Juanita Barkstall received her Master's degree in personnel management from Central Michigan University her sister, Thennia Tarrant planned to throw a surprise party to celebrate the occasion. Well, it didn't work out that way. As it turned out, she had to tell Juanita to make sure she would be there. Juanita was the guest of honor but she didn't enjoy her party a bit more than her family and select group of friends who saluted her academic achievement.

Love and Support: These are far from the best of times for Atty. and Mrs. William (Mary) Brooks. Their hearts are very heavy and we must let them know often how very much we all care.

A Unique Honor: Members of the Altrusa Bridge Club elected Mrs. Sally Jefferson to serve as their president for life. Members of the club are Bettie Johnson, Margaret Lothrop, Hazel Woods, Connie Anderson, Margaret Oglesbee, Levia Rutledge, Sarah Sanders and Helen Raney.

SINGS FOR SCOUTS - Gospel Singer Camille Doughty (above) will appear in concert Saturday, July 22, at the Union Grove Baptist Church, 266 N. Champion Ave., in behalf of Cub Scout Pack 202 and Boy Scout Troop 202. Proceeds from the concert will help to finance an educational and recreation tour of Atlanta, Ga., for the Scouts. The public is invited. Wallace Wyatt and Lafayette Scales are the Cubmaster and Scoutmaster, respectively.

Speech/Hearing Counseling For Elderly Offered

The Ohio State University speech and hearing clinic is conducting a series of counseling programs for elderly Columbus area residents with hearing problems.

After testing, participants are assisted in obtaining the appropriate hearing aid at the least cost or are counseled in making living adjustments when their hearing impairment cannot be corrected.

"We try to help them decide if a hearing aid really will be a benefit," said Edward J. Hardick, clinic director. "Not all older people can profit from a hearing aid because some of their problems are caused by deterioration of nerve fibers, which can't be overcome by amplification."

Hardick said there may be as many as 44,000 Columbus area elderly with hearing problems. He based his estimate on national figures which show as many as a third to a half of the country's population over age 65 as a hearing impairment.

Working in cooperation with the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, the clinic held two hearing screenings in April at senior citizen service centers. Among the 200 persons tested, nearly 50 percent had significant hearing problems.

Hardick said a hearing aid, including testing and fitting, may cost $300-$500, a prohibitive sum for many older people living on a fixed income. Presently neither private insurance companies nor government-sponsored programs normally will cover this cost.

The clinic charges a small fee for the hearing testing and the group counseling is offered at no cost. The clinic has no funds to aid the elderly in purchasing hearing aids but provides help in obtaining an aid at the least cost.

Located at 322 Derby Hall, 154 N. Oval Mall, the clinic is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Contact: Edward Hardick, (614) 422-8207.
